Hiroki : Hi, Mike. Look at this. The summer festival will be held at Midori Park on Saturday, August 3. Saki and I will go there with Noboru and Yumi. Can you come with us ?

Mike : Of course, I'd like to go. But I will have to stay home until the evening to take care of my little sister on that day. I'll leave home at about five.

Saki : Don't worry. The opening ceremony starts at five, but you can enjoy some events after that.

Mike : Good. What events are there ?

Hiroki : First of all, there is a wadaiko performance.

Mike : What is wadaiko ?

Saki : It is a kind of Japanese drum. We can also *take part in a wadaiko class there.

Mike : Sounds exciting. In Australia, I was in a *brass band, and I played the drums. But I've never heard about wadaiko.

Mike : Sure. Now I'm interested in wadaiko ! What are we going to do after the wadaiko class ?

Saki : We are going to watch fireworks by the pond. Have you ever seen Japanese fireworks ?

- Mike : No, but I hear that Japanese fireworks are very beautiful. So I'm looking forward to seeing them.
- Hiroki : Yeah. And the fireworks *makers for this festival make new *types of fireworks every year. The fireworks last year were the most wonderful.
- Saki : I agree with you, Hiroki. I still remember them. Hey, Mike, there is a photo event in the festival. Maybe we can see some pictures of last year's fireworks there. The fireworks in the pictures may not be as wonderful as the real ones, but I think they are *worth seeing.
- Mike : I want to see them before seeing the real fireworks, but are we going to have enough time after the wadaiko class ?
- Hiroki : *I'm afraid not, but I guess we can go to the event before the performance.
- Mike : Good idea. Then, do you think we'll have time to eat something before the fireworks ? I think I'll be hungry *by then.
- Hiroki : They have a food event. We can visit that and get something to eat there. We can *take out food from some food *stands, so we can eat that while we are watching the fireworks.
- Saki : My sister works at a *Turkish restaurant, and the restaurant is going to open a *kebab stand. I'd like to visit that.
- Hiroki : OK. I love kebab.
- Mike : It's perfect. Where shall we meet on Saturday ?
- Saki : How about at the *entrance of Midori Park ? Mike, can you get there by five thirty ?
- Mike : I think I can. We can go to the photo event first, right ?
- Hiroki : Yes. But actually, Noboru and Yumi want to watch the dance show before the wadaiko, so I think we will meet them in front of the stage after visiting the photo event.
- Mike : OK. Then we will watch the performance together. I can't wait until Saturday.
