Masao is talking about clubs with his classmates Hiroto and Ryuji in their classroom.

Masao: Our school has five sports clubs, basketball, baseball, tennis, volleyball, and soccer. How many new students joined each club in each year?

Hiroto: Well, I don't know.

Ryuji: I hear there are some graphs about the number of the new students of each club in the *student council room. Let's go there.

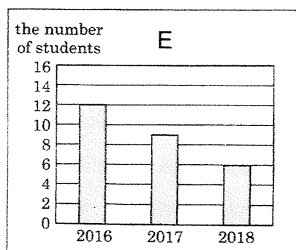

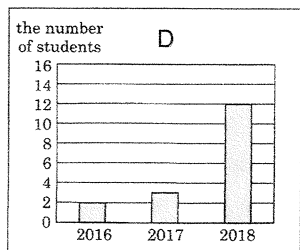

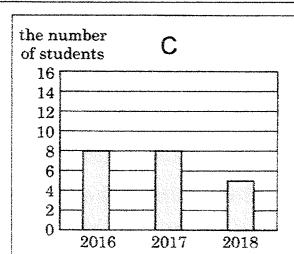

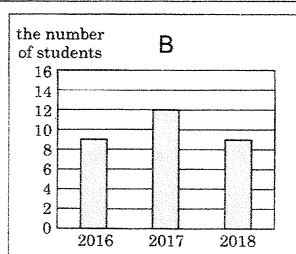

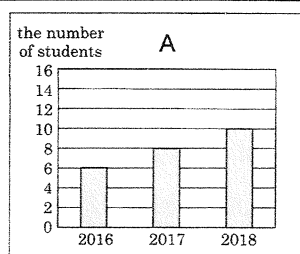

They come to the student council room.

Ryuji: Oh, I've just found five graphs! Let's see... More than ten students joined the basketball club in 2016, but after 2016, the number of the new students went down.

Hiroto: I see. About the baseball club, more new students joined it in 2018 than in 2017. The tennis club was the most popular *among the new students in 2018, but in 2017, only a few students joined it.

Masao: That's right. And about the soccer club, just thirty new students joined it for these three years. I think there are *various *trends in these five clubs.
